

Reflecting about this Course

Ei4Change

Reflecting about this Course

Reflecting about this Leadership Course

People who use their leadership capabilities effectively are more successful in their careers. This is because they manage themselves better and they get along with other people much more easily compared to those who just manage results, outputs and tasks.

Your leadership excellence is characterised by your ability to understand and manage your strengths and your liabilities, your motivation to succeed and to excel in your endeavours, to empathise with others, and to communicate effectively.

Before you start the course, here are some important questions for you to think about and reflect upon.

Often in the business context, we talk about setting goals. These are usually SMART goals (Specific, Measureable, Achievable, Realistic and Time Bound). If you are comfortable setting yourself a SMART goal for the course, please do so in the box below.

Most people are not comfortable doing this! It is important, however, to have a clear idea of your reasons for taking the course and what you want to achieve through your learning.

Think about what you already know about leadership, your styles of leadership and how you use these at work.

Reflecting about this Course

People are often interested in developing their leadership skills to

- Know how to influence others more effectively
- Understand how to use emotional data and information
- Fill a skills gap
- Develop new skills for the future
- Revisit their existing skills and see how improving their leadership skills can help make them better leaders
- Build successful relationships
- To grow and develop in your current job
- Work towards a new job or career
- Make the transition into a management or leadership position

What are your reasons for taking this course? What are your objectives?
(You can make your answer SMART if you want to.)

Reflecting about this Course

How will you know you have achieved these?

Who can give you support?

Reflecting about this Course

How can they help you?

One important thing to do whilst you are taking the course is to

Have Fun!!

The offer of help is genuine, so do get in touch if you have any questions.

Reflecting about this Course